The World Series may be over, but we've got one last inning for you. Banks and other financial companies have been buying "naming rights" to major league ballparks for some time now. On occasion, the matter has become controversial (such as the N.Y. Met's new stadium, Citi Field). On others, the display value is priceless—witness the Philadelphia Phillies' battle for the recent Series at their Citizens Bank Park.

Here's your challenge. Based on our research on the web*, there are 24 major league and minor league (some are very minor) ballparks named after banks or other financial services companies. All of them are contained in the puzzle above.

Fax your completed puzzle, with name, bank, title, and e-mail, by 5 PM, Nov. 11, to 212-633-1165, to participate in a drawing for a $25 Amazon gift certificate. Good luck! scocheo@sbsub.com

For fun: Send us a color picture for display on our site of any local ballpark your bank sponsors, including your bank name or logo.
