2010, for some, is the Year of Mark Twain. This year marks the 175th anniversary of his birth and the 100th anniversary of his death. Now, Twain was many things—author, speaker, publisher, miner, frontier journalist, riverboat pilot, soldier (very, very briefly), bankrupt investor, and more. But, to our knowledge, he was never a banker. However, he did have something famous to say about banks that is frequently misquoted. On the next page, we've given that quote, and the way we hid the words.

Fax your completed puzzle, with name, bank, title, and e-mail, by 5 PM, May 19, to 212-633-1165, to participate in a drawing for a $25 Amazon certificate. (Please allow three weeks for e-mailed delivery of the certificate to the e-mail address provided.) Good luck! scocheo@sbpub.com

Mark Twain On Bankers: Clues

Mark Twain was right about many aspects of human nature, but he was also a terrible cynic. Here's his famous quote about bankers:

"A banker is a fellow who lends you his umbrella when the sun is shining and wants it back the minute it begins to rain."

Actually, in our experience, bankers don't like to ask for the umbrella back.

But they do remain interested.
